Short Description

UPCOMING - Giving breath to your imagination -WEBINAR - Zoom
Saturday, August 8th With Sonia Barrett

Description

Life is changing in some way for everyone according to the circumstances of this particular time cycle. Perhaps this is your time to implement ideas that have been gathering dust in your mind. It's also possible that you might be uncertain about exactly what you would like to do or of feeling anxious because of the uncertainty of what comes next for you.

This two-hour workshop will cover some of the following topics. There is a follow up three-part workshop series that will go deeper into each topic. Participants will apply these tools and personal discovers to the shaping of their unfolding future. This is about the balancing of self despite the background noise in this hovering field of uncertainty and powerlessness.

This moment in time is without a doubt a grand opportunity despite appearances.

SINGLE WORKSHOP: While you will walk away with immediately applicable information the series will continue that dialog and support in personal expansion.

THREE PART SERIES: Participants will begin to work on their life's direction as identified and with suggested homework after each session. The intention is for each participant to have a clearer roadmap for their projects/ideas/business plan/personal goal etc. by the end of the third session. You won't be let off the hook. In other words, excuses won't fly (a bird would never fly if its life was built on excuses and fear of taking off).
